America’s Oldest Catholic Newspaper

Why advertise with The Pilot?
For almost two hundred years, The Pilot has been Boston’s source for local, national and international news, reporting on the issues most concerning the Catholic community. Each week, The Pilot is seen by over 50,000 people in a variety of locations from reader’s homes, to parishes and community centers. It can also be read on the Kindle and on mobile apps.

Advertising with The Pilot allows you to reach an audience of desirable individuals. According to a national study by Simmons Market Research Bureau, readers of the Catholic press are better educated than the average American. They also tend to earn more money and travel more often than other Americans. They are more likely to have stocks, bonds and other financial investments, and to contribute substantially to the Church and other charities.

Circulation
The Pilot averages 18,000 issues per week, with readership of 50,000.

Issues are mailed directly to subscriber’s homes or parishes.

Bonus distribution is provided for many special issues, (see page 4) oftentimes mailed directly to people most interested in the content of the special issue, section or supplement.

A few examples include:
Over 3,500 extra copies of the Open House issue are sent to Catholic school teachers, administrators, and parents of students in September and January.

Hundreds of extra copies of the Vocations issue are sent to the Cathedral of the Holy Cross for the Ordination.

25% of Catholics said they had read their diocesan paper in the last six months. The Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate (CARA) estimates that 25% to 30% of adult Catholics read their diocesan newspapers with some regularity. We take the mid-point of this range and assume 27.5% readership. We can estimate that 14.5 million Catholics — or nearly 5% of the total U.S. population have read a diocesan newspaper or magazine at least once in the last six months.*
